I LOVE Josie Cotton

The final art for the Freaker's Ball is finally done. I used an image from a pin-up calendar from 1973 from Rigid Tools as the main design element. The calendar is really awesome. It has a different pin-up for every month and each girl modeling with a different tool. Phyllis Davis aka Susan Lake from Beyond The Valley of The Dolls is the model from May!

And because I'm one of those people who thinks they spell everything correctly, I didn't bother to proofread the final poster until after it was already printed...doh! Penny The Monkey Girl will be on hand playing her theremin NOT her theramin. That monkey girl has come way through the mist and will cringe when I show her the misspelling. But that will be the furthest thing from her mind on the 28th when she will demonstrate how to play the creepy instrument and allow anyone interested to try it out for themselves!

THE MANEATERS

And check out this photo of Freaker's Ball Headliner, Ginger Coyote (far right) with The Maneaters, featuring my favorite 80s pop singer, Josie Cotton! Ginger has been working with Josie lately and can't stop telling me what a sweet person she is. Unfortunately, a recording of "Female Trouble" from the John Waters film of the same name probably won't end up on her next CD because of unforeseen legal action from Camp Waters. Damn. If you haven't visited Ginger's , Punk Globe there's another recent photo of Josie and info on her next, long awaited release.

If you have deprived yourself of the Josie Cotton experience...I highly recommend you go out and find her records, CDs or download them from I-tunes if they're on there. As a teenager, I remember having to purchase "Convertible Music" at least 3 times because the record skipped. I'm not sure if it was my crap record player or a flaw in the record pressing, it didn't really matter...I love that record so much and would have been satisfied if one whole side was blank. Go get Josie!
