Josie Cotton & Kevin Preston Got A Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On With New Rockabilly Single, 'The Ballad Of Elvis Presley'

by Lisa Hafey | Posted on 01/07/2022

The first thing you'll notice in the video of 'The Ballad Of Elvis Presley' is Josie Cotton's sky-high beehive hair, the likes of which we've not seen since the late great Amy Winehouse - or, more likely given the subject matter, Priscilla Presley. But hair like that is a good sign that we're in for a treat, and Josie Cotton and Kevin Preston certainly don't disappoint.

'The Ballad Of Elvis Presley' is just that – a biographical journey through his life and career, from his origins in Tupelo Mississippi to his demise at his Graceland estate. The collaboration between Josie Cotton and Kevin Preston – the latter with his own Elvis style bouffant – couldn't come at a better time, with the recent release of Baz Luhrmann's 'Elvis' biopic, and with a rhythm section including Lee Rocker of the Stray Cats, and Blondie's Clem Burke, is guaranteed to find a welcome space in the hearts of not just Elvis's fans, but also fans of great music.

The music video for 'Ballad Of Elvis Presley', directed by Piper Ferguson, sees Josie and Kevin in a ghost town, set loose in a saloon, a church, and a duelling ground. They're joined by others as well, including a laid back bartender, a gunslinger, a dead ringer for Calamity Jane, and a slew of poker players. The members of the band have set up behind the swinging wooden doors of the bar, and they're certainly ready for a showdown with anybody who even dares question that Elvis Presley is, and always shall be, The King.
