New wave icon Josie Cotton said of the rockabilly-colored new single and the video "The Ballad of Elvis Presley," "I thought something very special was done." Released on June 21st on Josie's own label, Kitten Robot Records, this single and video makes you feel like you're walking the horizon of a more innocent era. This is the place where Viva Las Vegas, the land of Elvis, will live forever.

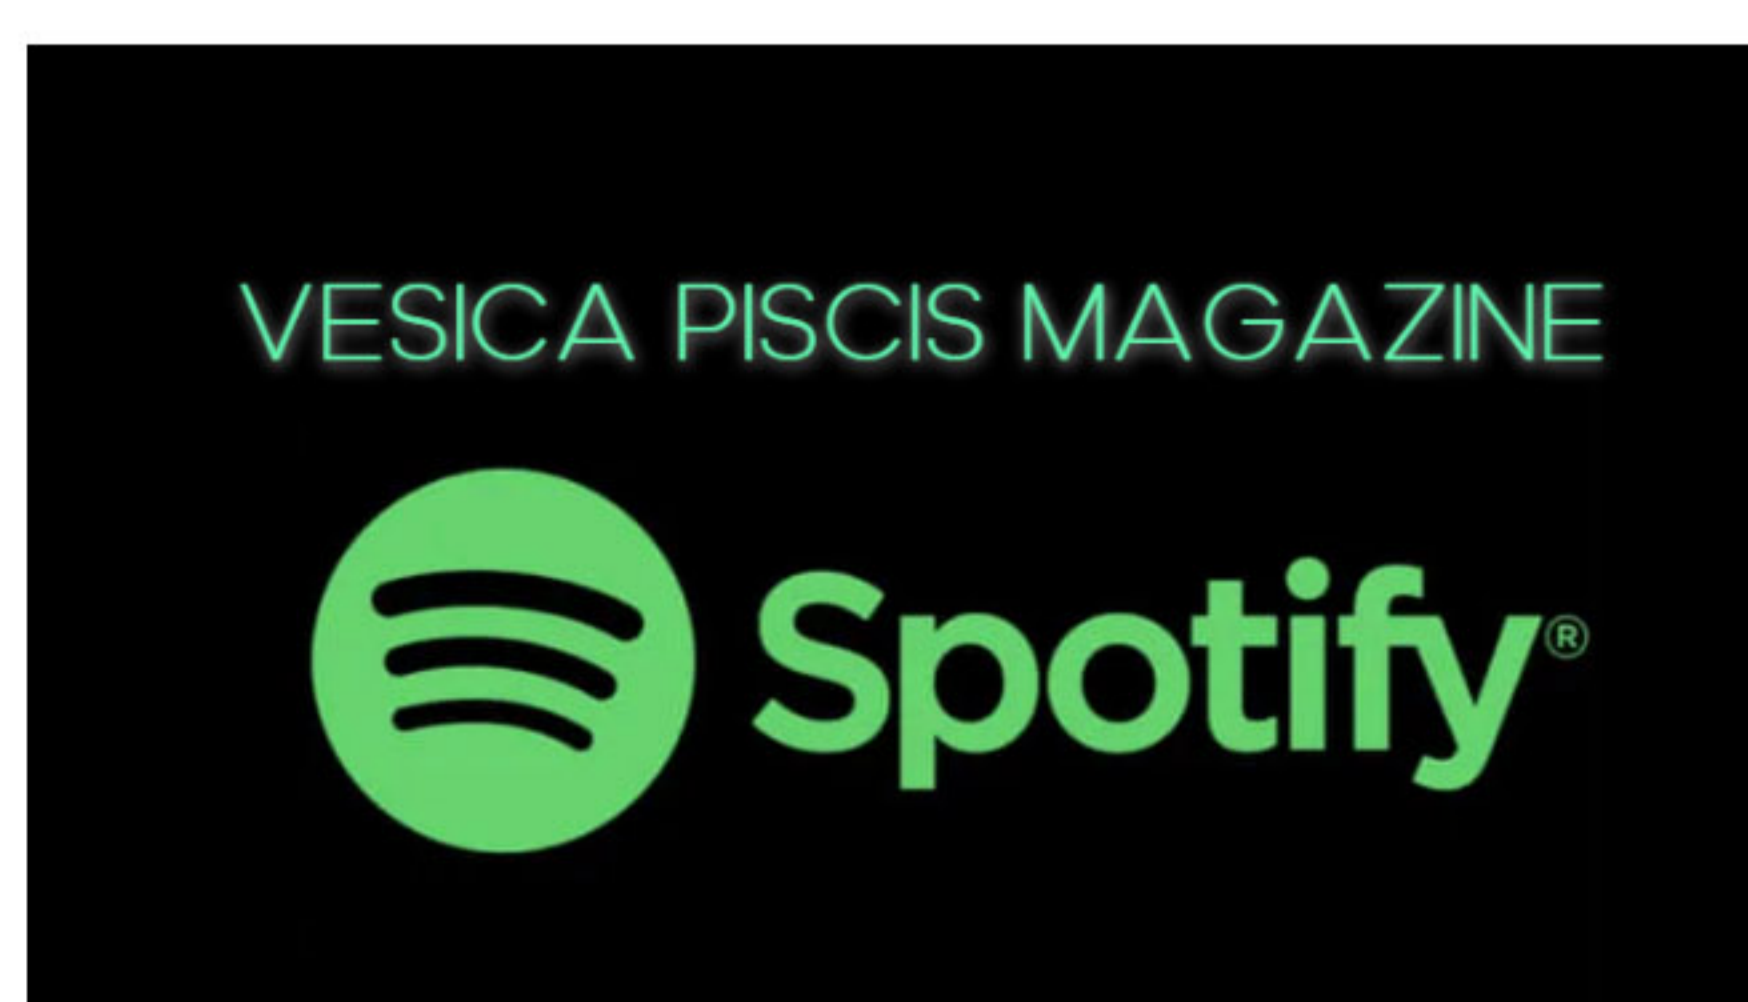

"Rockabilly and country music grew up avoiding my mother, who was the number one Tammy Wynette fan in the world, but when I left Texas and came to Los Angeles to meet the Payne brothers, I got a real song. He taught me how to write and started with anyone other than Tammy Wynette," Josie laughs and talks about the production and composition team that helped her music career.

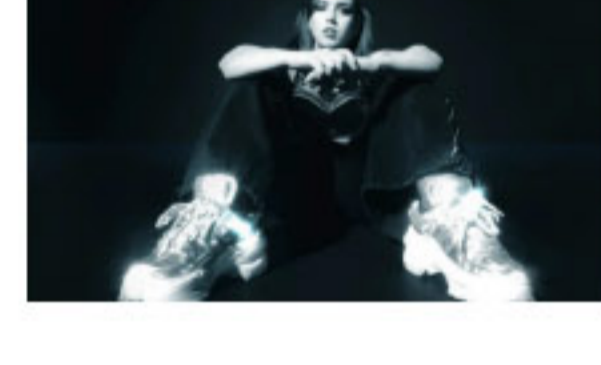

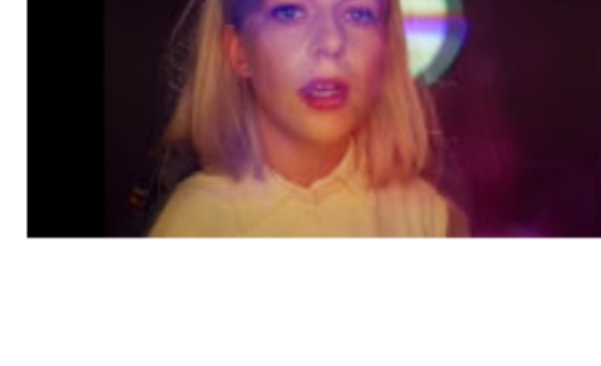

"It was a natural choice for Kevin to be my George Jones on this song. We've collaborated on many projects, but nothing like this," Josie said. We're talking about this inspirational combination.
